

Jeanne Darby is assistant dean of Arts and Sciences. She is responsible for many of the operational functions of the Dean's office, from student-centered initiatives such as the annual Senior Honors Convocation and academic integrity issues, to faculty processes such as the administration of course and personnel evaluation policies. In addition, Jeanne works with department chairs and the Registrar's office to manage course scheduling and enrollments. She is responsible for handling most aspects of adjunct faculty activity, from the creation of appointment letters to acting as liaison with Human Resources regarding adjunct personnel issues.

Jeanne began her career at Le Moyne in 2000 as a staff assistant in the Academic Support Center. Less than a year later, she joined the Arts and Sciences dean's office. At the time, the College consisted of one division, the dean's office consisted of a dean and an assistant, and the College had two master's degree programs. Jeanne has been thrilled to watch and be a part of the development of Le Moyne's academics into three divisions with a much greater diversity of undergraduate programs that focus on interdisciplinarity and multiple master's degree programs.

Jeanne earned her M.S.Ed in General Education at Le Moyne College in 2005, and her B.A. in Linguistics from Binghamton University.
