CHRISTOPHER B. CURTIS '79 (CHAIR)

Christopher B. Curtis '79 is currently executive chairman for private-equity-owned Mission Critical Group, an electrical equipment engineering, manufacturer and professional services firm. Curtis is also an independent board director for the Canadian Standards Association and S&C Electric Company, where he chairs the Human Resource and Compensation Committee and is a member of the Governance Committee.

From 2016 to 2020, Curtis served as chief executive officer of the Wencor Group, an Atlanta, Ga. based supply, distribution and service company to the aerospace industry. He also served as chairman of Munters AB (NASDAQ: MTRS.ST), a Swedish-based global leader in air treatment solutions from 2014 to 2018. From 2014 through 2016, Curtis served as a non-executive director on the public company boards of Kimball Electronics and Aegion.

Curtis is perhaps most well-known for his work at the $30 billion-plus French multinational Schneider Electric, where from 2008 to 2013, Curtis was the president and chief executive officer of Schneider Electric North America. Under his leadership, Schneider Electric North America's sales topped $7 billion. Curtis' experience with Schneider Electric spanned two decades as he oversaw all operations in the United States, Canada and Mexico. He was a member of the corporate executive committee and, from 2008 to 2012, he also led Schneider Electric's Buildings Business, valued at $2 billion globally.

He has extensive strategic and operating experience in general management, business transformation, mergers and acquisitions, industry/government affairs, investor relations, sales/marketing, services and operations. Prior to his role leading Schneider Electric, Chris was president, Schneider Electric USA, president of Schneider Electric Canada, senior vice president of sales and services, and vice president of marketing for the company's North American operating division.

A graduate of Le Moyne College, Curtis has also studied at both the Harvard Business School and Guanghau School of Management in Beijing. He was an executive adviser for the Farmer School of Business at Miami of Ohio University from 2008-2016 and was the chairman of the National Electrical Manufacturers Association in 2014. He was recognized with the industry's highest honor, the Bernard Falk Award, in 2016.

DENISE A. QUINN '78

Denise A. Quinn '78 retired in 2019 as a Vice-President/Plant Manager after 41 years with what is today the Molson Coors Beverage Company. She is a native of Syracuse who started her career in the Miller Brewing Company Container Division in Fulton, N.Y., holding positions in the quality and production departments. She was promoted to the Trenton, Ohio brewery in 1991 as part of the start-up team and held positions with increasing responsibilities in the Operations departments before becoming the Brewery Manager of the acquired Olympia Brewery in Washington state. She moved to the Fort Worth, Texas brewery in the same capacity before returning to the Trenton, Ohio brewery as the Vice-President/Brewery Manager.

During her time in the Ohio Brewery, she was asked to accept an assignment to lead a corporate project to develop, recommend and then support the implementation of a standardized organizational structure across the seven breweries. Throughout her career, she had the opportunity to blend the science, technology, and engineering components of manufacturing with her love of the people side of collaborating, leading, managing and succeeding with others – the opportunity to grow and develop as individuals and share the experience with others of achieving extraordinary results. Primarily because of her Ohio brewery experiences, she has been asked to speak at conferences on subjects ranging from employee empowerment, creating a unique labor-management relationship and sustainability.

Today, she serves in several volunteer positions including as a Past Chair and current Board member of the Boys & Girls Clubs of Hamilton, a member of the Experience Advisory Board, Past Chair and current Board member of the Butler County Finance Authority and the Vice Chair of the Kettering Hamilton Hospital Foundation Board.

Quinn has been recognized with a 2014 Women in Manufacturing STEP Award, the 2018 Ignatian Award for Community Service, the 2019 Everest Award (honoring Leaders and Legends on the I-75 Growth Corridor), and the 2021 Hamilton Heritage Award for Outstanding Community Service. ROBERT F. REKLAITIS '75

Robert F. Reklaitis '75 retired in 2018 from the full-time practice of law, after 41 years as a trial attorney in Chicago, Ill., and Washington, D.C.

During his time in practice, Reklaitis represented telecommunications carriers in antitrust litigation; defended federal banking agencies from multibillion-dollar lawsuits alleging that they exceeded their authority in addressing the three largest banking failures in U.S. history; and represented reinsurers in arbitrations throughout the world. His teams obtained verdicts and settlements exceeding $2.5 billion. He also argued many cases in various United States Courts of Appeal on regulatory and competition issues. He is now consulting with clients on trial strategy and ethics issues, and as resolution counsel and mediator for large, intractable disputes.

Reklaitis has taught trial practice at programs sponsored by the National Institute of Trial Advocacy and at trial programs at Notre Dame Law School. He has been recognized as one of the Best Lawyers in Washington, D.C. and Maryland in listings published by the New York Times and Wall Street Journal. He also served for ten years as chief judge of a hearing committee for the D.C. Board of Professional Responsibility.

In addition to his professional responsibilities, Reklaitis has been a tutor, mentor and member of the board of directors at the Washington Jesuit Academy, an all-scholarship middle school for underserved boys with an intense eleven hours per day, 11 months per year program centered on academics, life skills, resilience and spiritual development. He chaired the governance committee; developed reporting protocols and educational programs related to student safety; and crafted a sustaining agreement between the academy and the Maryland Province of the Society of Jesus. He was also an early member of the Woodstock Business Conference, a Jesuit organization created to integrate Jesuit discernment into business decisions.

Reklaitis has been on the Le Moyne College board of trustees since 2013 and served as chair of the board from 2019-2022; vice chair from 2016-2019; chair of the Governance and Succession Planning committees; and chair of the Ad Hoc Committees on Athletics and Strategic Communications. He was also the trustee member on the search committee for the athletic director.

He graduated summa cum laude from Le Moyne College in 1975 and from the University of Virginia School of Law in 1978.

KENT SYVERUD

Kent Syverud is the 12th chancellor and president of Syracuse University. Now in his 11th year as Chancellor, he has worked with faculty, students, staff, trustees, and alumni to steward the University during a period of transformational change and progress. During his tenure, the University has seen record applications and enrollment, attracting an increasingly diverse and academically accomplished student body.

The University has played a central role in Central New York's economic resurgence, including its work to attract Micron to the region. Syracuse University also has become the best private university for veterans, with enrollment of veterans and military-connected families more than tripling since 2014. The expansion of Syracuse University's D'Aniello Institute for Veterans and Military Families and the creation of the National Veterans Resource Center at the Daniel and Gayle D'Aniello Building, a state-of-the-art facility that houses innovative military-centered programming, are core to Syracuse University being the best place for veterans.

At his direction, the University has hired nearly 700 new faculty since 2018, many into interdisciplinary research centers designed to tackle some of the world's biggest challenges, strengthen research, and expand faculty diversity. Embracing innovation, including in online degrees and programs, Chancellor Syverud encouraged Syracuse to create one of the first online J.D. degree programs in the nation in 2019. Syracuse University has built financial strength and stability, with the endowment doubling to more than $2 billion in 2024 and more than $1.4 billion raised in the ongoing Forever Orange Campaign.

A noted legal scholar and teacher, Chancellor Syverud continues to teach courses each semester in the College of Law and the Martin J. Whitman School of Management. He also led the effort to update the governance of the Atlantic Coast Conference, serving as the Chair of the Board of Directors from 2019-2021 and as the chair of the 2020 search for the new Commissioner, James Phillips. He currently serves on the Boards of the Crouse Health System, the Dormitory Authority of the State of New York, Le Moyne College, and The SUNY College of Environmental Science and Forestry. Chancellor Syverud previously served on Scouting's Longhouse Council, as Commissioner for the Middle States Commission on Higher Education, as co-Chair of the Regional Economic Development Council for Central New York, and as Chair of the Law School Admissions Council. In 2016, he completed six years of service as the Independent Trustee of the Deepwater Horizon Oil Spill Trust, the $20 billion fund created by BP and the White House to manage claims related to the Gulf Oil Spill.

Vukelic has been in his current position since 2005. Previously, he served as executive vice president of Try-it-Distributing Company. Prior to joining the family business in 1990, Vukelic pursued a career in politics, serving as district director for U.S. congressman Bill Paxon from 1988 to 1990, during which time he assisted in constituent services and represented the congressman at area events. In 2014, he was named to the transition team by newly elected U.S. congresswoman Elise Stefanik.

He currently serves on the board of directors of AIM Services where he is vice chairman of the board.

Vukelic attended Canisius High School in Buffalo before graduating from Hobart and William Smith Colleges in 1988 with a bachelor's degree in economics. In 1987, he was the recipient of the Augustus H. Hillman '26 Memorial Award, which recognizes the outstanding sportsmanship, leadership and determination of a member of the Hobart cross-country team.

Melissa F. Zell is a licensed architect whose work prioritizes sustainability by considering a building's entire life cycle from planning and design through construction and operation. She believes in the power of in-fill and revitalization projects to transform neighborhoods and build community. Zell has enjoyed opportunities to work on a wide range of projects throughout the United States and also France, where she lived with her husband and two daughters for ten years.

She is active on the Board of Directors for the Downtown Committee of Syracuse, a member of M&T Bank's Directors Advisory Council for Central New York, and a member of the Cornell University Council. She recently served on the Board of Managers at the University of Rochester's Memorial Art Gallery and the Buildings and Grounds Committee at Allendale Columbia School.

A native of Syracuse, Melissa's connection and dedication to Le Moyne runs deep as the proud daughter of Noreen R. Falcone '58 and proud parent of Alison Zell '22. Melissa earned a bachelor's degree from Cornell University and a master's degree from Stanford University.

She enjoys time with her husband, Tom, and daughters, Julia and Alison, especially on snowcapped mountains in winter and freshwater lakes in summer.
